

Zero-point Technology: For real or for crap?

From Wikipedia: “It is believed that an electromagnetic field exists in a vacuum even when the temperature of the surrounding material is reduced towards absolute zero. The existence of such a zero-point field has been confirmed experimentally by the Casimir experiment, i.e. the measurement of the attractive force between two parallel plates in an evacuated, near-zero temperature enclosure....Using this historical measure of energy density it has been estimated that there is enough zero point energy contained in one cubic meter of space to boil all of the oceans of the world. In recent years, a number of new age books have begun to appear propounding the view that the zero-point field of physics is the secret force of the universe being used to explain such phenomena as intention, remote viewing, paranormal ability, etc. One of the main purveyors of this view is Stanford physicist Harold Puthoff who spent more than thirty years examining the zero-point field. Books that promote this view include Lynne McTaggart’s 2001 The Field: The Quest for the Secret Force of the Universe, Ervin Laszlo’s 2004 Science and the Akashic Field: An Integral Theory of Everything, and Brenda Anderson’s 2006 Playing the Quantum Field: How Changing Your Choices can Change Your Life.

Another popular book that propounds this view in a loose sense is Masaru Emoto’s 2005 The Hidden Messages in Water. These views do not, however, have the support of the general scientific community and are typically considered by them to be pseudoscience.”

A client came in raving about her Zero-Point Pendant. “You’ve got to try this! It was created by the angels, and it’s magnificent! I feel so much better!” She said excitedly. I knew she’d suffered from rheumaty arthritis for a number of years, and experienced constant chronic pain. For her to find something that helped her was nothing short of a miracle.

But I was skeptical. There’s always gimmicks out there. And let’s face it, whatever you believe, is true for you. So if you believe wearing a pendant will help you feel better, then it will. If you don’t believe it will help, it won’t.

Still, she was so excited about it and was definitely showing physical and emotional signs of improvement.

“I’d like to give a talk at your center about this,” she announced.

We agreed on the date and time, and then I truly forgot about it.

Three weeks later, she came in again. “I’m getting ready for my talk,” she announced. I had to scramble a bit on that one because I didn’t remember that she was giving a talk. After checking the calendar, I got it. “Oh yes! The Zero-Point Talk!” I said, back-pedaling fast.

“I’m so excited about this. I’ve put ads in the paper and I’ve been telling everyone I know about it. I truly feel so much better. It’s amazing!” She gushed. I was still feeling a bit of resistance, because it’s a gadget. But then some people consider crystals to be gadgets, too, I had to remind myself. I decided to wait and see how the talk went before I gave up on it completely.

The day of the talk arrived and so did curious people. What threw me was the number of people who entered saying, “I don’t know why I’m here. I just knew I had to be here.”

To me, that’s the higher self talking. We hear that a lot with our healing work and our workshops. When the higher self guides someone and they listen, people find themselves acting out of ‘normal’ behavior without knowing why, or simply following their inner guidance and trusting that the real reason behind the action will reveal itself.

That says something to me. That kind of response is significant and makes me pay attention to what’s going on.

The next impressive statement was when the company’s representative said, “Let’s face it, folks. We’re just giving you Zero Point Technology in this form until you can learn how to do it yourself.”

Whoa. Wait a minute. Even if it is just a marketing statement, it’s a striking one. Someone seems to know how to appeal to the higher self in a big way here.

There were demonstrations utilizing muscle testing that indicated zero point was helpful and beneficial. Wearing a pendant appeared to neutralize cell phone emissions. Scanning the body with a laser infused with the ability to pull zero point from the atmosphere balanced misaligned hips. Food placed on a zero point coaster maintained its freshness longer. And on and on.....

Okay, now I was curious. I felt I needed to experience a bit more. So I asked my client if we could sit down and ‘play’ with her zero point products. “Of course!” she said excitedly.

She brought in a bunch of products infused with the energy and placed them on a table. As soon as I entered the room, I felt the energy. I could feel in my body the intensity of the tools. Not just physically, but I sensed these tools were manifestation tools; accessing the creative force between cells, drawing in life force energy to support intention. I sensed all that without having read anything about Zero Point or knowing anything about it other than it had been called the void, which scientists thought was nothing. They then discovered that the void was everything. But scientists didn’t seem to know what to do with this knowledge.

Now I started to get excited. I borrowed a pendant from her to wear until my order came in.

As I wore it, I began to feel an expansion of my energy.

And I was a bit uncomfortable with that.

So I explored my discomfort.

I found I was a bit afraid of expansion. Afraid of being pushed into things faster than I thought I was ready. Afraid I wouldn't live up to my potential. Afraid of success.....

Looking at all of that, I decided that if my soul wanted expansion, it was because I was ready for it. And if there were tools available to help me get myself there, I would use them as long as they were for my highest good and healing.

I placed my intention to allow my expansion into my soul's growth and potential, with grace and ease. I asked to expand into my joy and natural abundance connected to doing my soul's work.

That day, there was a steady stream of customers buying retail, and booking appointments. Not just for me, but all who work at our center! I felt expansive and abundant and filled with joy!

My expansion has continued since then, in ways I know of and in ways I know not, but have felt.

I have noticed a natural detoxing taking place in my body without using any cleansing products. Sugar gives me a headache. So does alcohol. In talking to other people using the pendants, they have noticed the same thing.

I also noticed that any emotions needing to be cleared appear to rise to the surface faster than before. Emotions like anger, resentment, distrust. And if I choose to heal them, I can do that faster than before.

However, one thing began to bother me. If someone has the technology to access Zero Point, then why keep it to himself and place it into products to be sold?

I didn't know much about how it supposedly came from the angels, but if that were the case, why wasn't it being shared?

Why was it being treated as a third dimensional business opportunity?

If this is truly a fourth dimensional energy, then doesn't it make sense to shift the business paradigm into a fourth dimensional business?

Why not teach others how to access this? Why keep it for yourself?

That night, I felt my cells expanding outward into my increasing energy field. And I made the intention that I would learn to connect with Zero Point Energy without tools. I must have been ready for that, or the thought would not have been there, I decided.

I felt extreme warmth through my body. Then I fell asleep.

Over the course of the next few days, my angels and guides worked with me to help me access Zero Point Energy without tools.

They gave me a meditation I'm to share with others.

For free.

Because this energy needs to be shared.

This meditation is for the highest good and healing for all.

It will help you

- *feel better fast
- *feel emotionally balanced and centered
- *help you retrieve lost or forgotten parts of self
- *manifest your heart's desires
- *send healing to those whom you have permission
- *send healing to the earth, other planets, stars, and the universe.

It is a meditation that works.

And it's free.

And if we all do this meditation within a 24 hour period, it will create a planetary shift faster and better than any of us thought possible! At least that's what my angels and guides tell me.

They've picked August 8, 2008 as the Meditation Day. At 8AM, your time, wherever you are. So in that 24 hour period, everyone who wants to be a part of this will have, and can see instantaneous results, the angels and guides say.

How many people does it take to change the world? What if we have the number it takes? What if we can all access Zero Point Energy for the highest good and healing for all? What will the world look like if it changes for the highest good and healing for all?

Drunvalo says it only takes 3 beings to create change. If so, I know we'll have 3 beings taking part in this.

Gregg Braden says it takes less than 8,000 to change the world. (The square root of 1 percent of the world's population). So let's see if we can't get 8,000 people to all try this meditation on August 8, 2008 at 8AM and see what happens!

After all, it's free, and the intention is healing for the highest good for all.
It can do no harm.

And after all, if you believe it, it's true.

Although the meditation will be provided in the August Spirit of Maat Magazine, if you want to have a sneak peek and prepare for it, you can visit www.sedonaheartwalk.com/enlightenment.shtml#888

Please feel free to send it on to anyone who might feel guided to join in.
Anyone who wants to learn how to access Zero Point Energy without tools.
Anyone interested in healing themselves, and sharing healing with others and the planet.
Because you can!

I remain your devoted servant,
Phoenix Rising Star
Co-Director of Your HeartWalk Center
An alternative healing center in Sedona, AZ
Specializing in helping you heal yourself!
www.sedonaheartwalk.com
928-204-5589